Now, here is a vision that I would love to make a reality

This is Starline, a blueprint for an EU high speed train network, created by the think tank 21st Europe. Unfortunately, it is far away from our current reality.

I used to be able to travel by train from Lisbon to Berlin, but since 2020 the connection Lisbon Madrid is cancelled and there is not a single train connection from Portugal to the rest of Europe, insane. (please correct me if someone knows one)

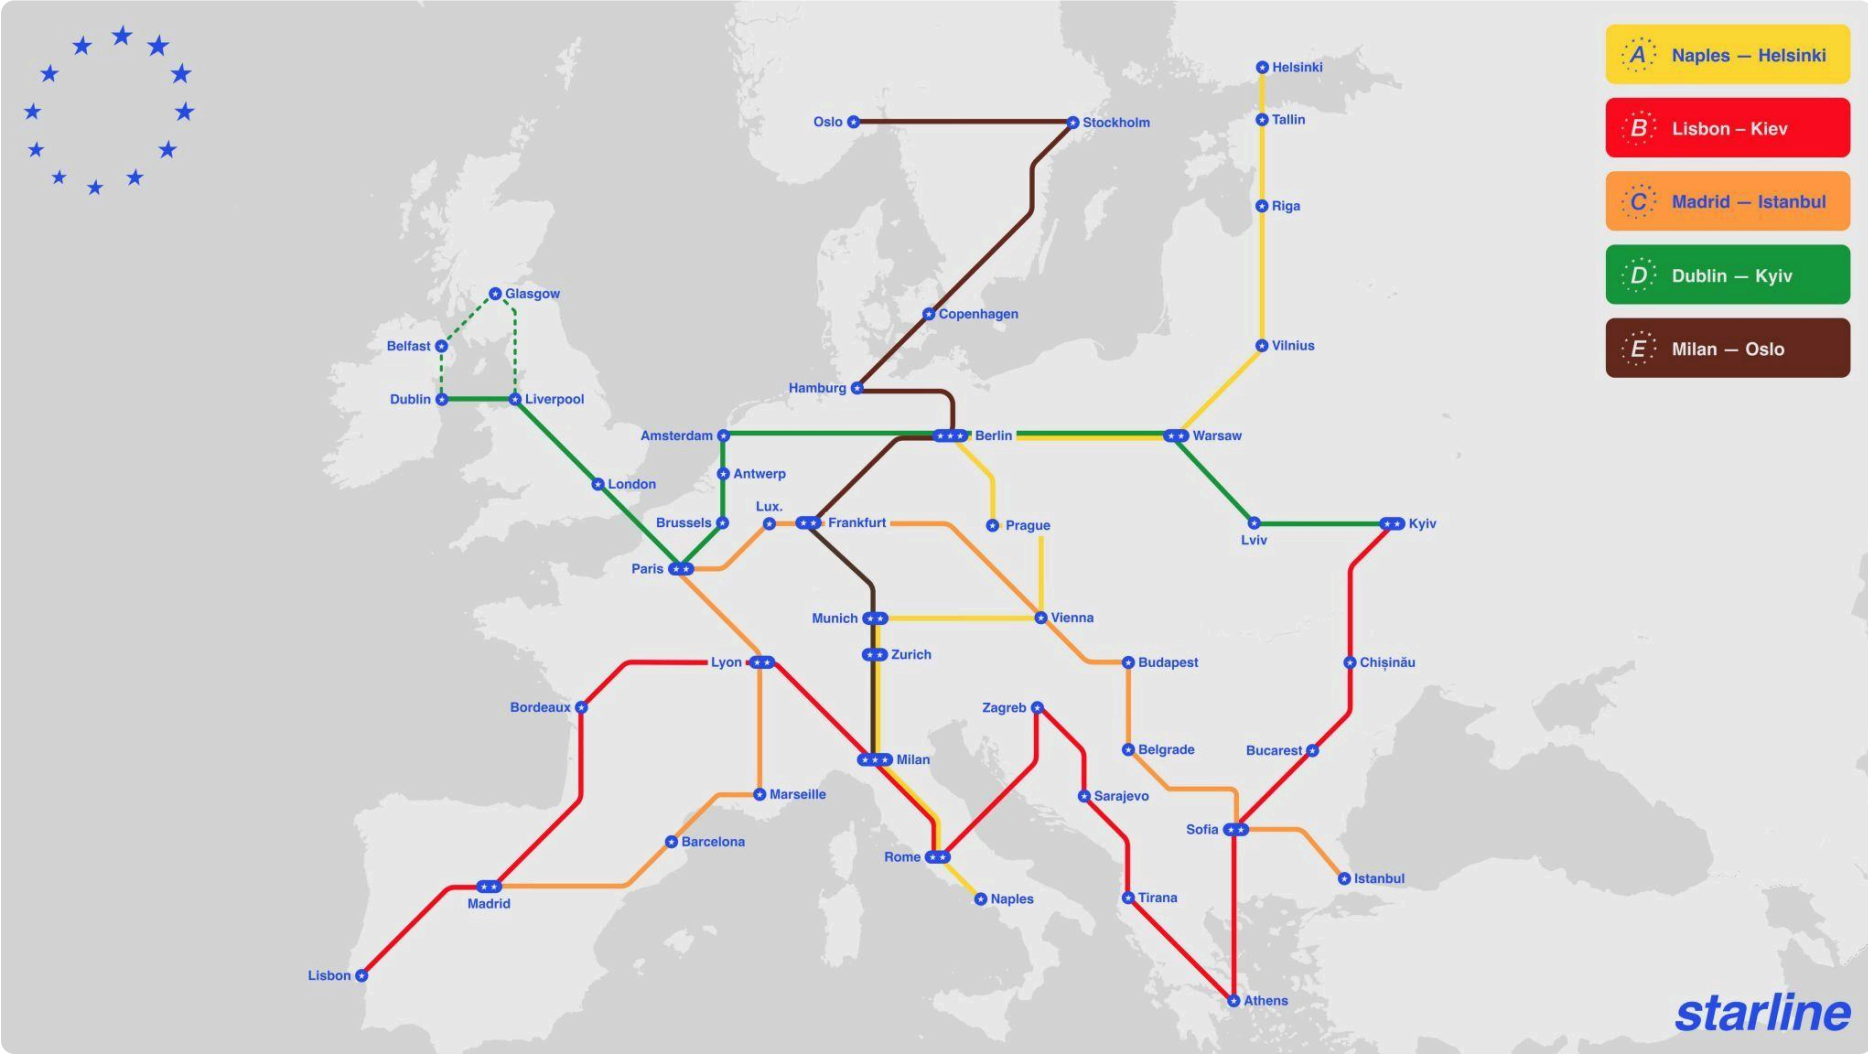

According to 21st Europe, replacing short-haul flights with high-speed rail could cut emissions by 95% and it is 30% faster than cars. Now we just need politicians bold enough to put this into practice. I will leave the link to the beautiful project outline by 21st Europe in the comments, thanks to Nicolas Paries for showing it to me.

If you've been watching Severance and thinking, ooh I wish my studio interior channelled the retrofuturistic dystopian vibes of Lumon, then Ikea has just the furniture for you.

Typographic voices

Choice of fonts to get your own voice?

Small circles

Is there a maximum number of people you interact with? Or maybe about a theme? Or maybe for an instance?

Semantic links

Capacity to create connections between objects (concepts, texts, people...)

No vanity metrics

Nothing at all? Or maybe citation index, like in scientific research? Or bookmarks? Or maybe more detailed analysis and appreciation?

No followers

Maybe hidden (you follow but the person doesn't know)? Or maybe not at all? Maybe just circles of interest?

Really sad to see Bratislava not on that picture. It's the easiest connection to make, Vienna, Bratislava, Budapest.

The famous triangle of 3 capital cities each an hour from each other... shame you chose to leave one member of EU, right in the heart of Europe, out of your picture
